October 27, 2025Dear Patriot,

Our dear, hardworking President is dancing his way through Southeast Asia. He has been warmly and wonderfully received and celebrated.

Trump is signing all manner of trade and peace deals. He is now off to Japan to meet their new Prime Minister.

Meanwhile, more drug-filled boats are blowing up, causing politicians from both sides to whine and moan.

If you are on Instagram, check out what Judge Jeanine has to say about the drug making chemicals that have been seized.

The communists who have taken over Canada decided to butt into our elections by running advertising during US college football games. The ads misused quotes from President Reagan on the topic of tariffs. Trump slapped them down and ended all trade negotiations. O...Canada. The wimps caved but the damage is done.

For a deeper look into a few issues we offer...

- the only politician in the world committed to stopping evil.
- honoring the White House... who does it better?

- quiet billionaire comes to the aid of his country
- inside the messy Dem Party.
- the big windy lie.

1- If you ever doubted the presence of true evil in the world, that doubt will be erased after you read this.

The villain here boldly calls herself "La Diabla". At least now, this wickedness is not totally unchecked.

You no doubted missed the extensive coverage of this terrible story in the Fake New

Grotesque Baby-Harvesting Operation Taken Down Thanks to Trump-Created Intel Program, Was Stone's Throw from US Border

QUOTE: Indeed, nothing better illustrates former President Joe Biden's betrayal of the American people — not to mention Democrats' broader indifference to violence against women and children — than the myriad horror stories around the U.S. southern border. Thursday at the White House, Director of National Intelligence Tom Gabbard announced that a Trump-created intelligence-sharing initiative had resulted in the arrest of a Mexican cartel-affiliated baby trafficker called "La Diabla".

"Her whole money-making operation," Gabbard said of the diabolical trafficker, "was centered around luring pregnant women, performing illegal c-sections, harvesting organs, and selling newborn babies."

Moments earlier, the intelligence director had explained Trump's role in the arrest. She identified a "newly-created national intelligence fusion cell" that has aided both U.S. and Mexican law enforcement. That fusion cell made possible La Diabla's arrest as well as others.

Gabbard made those comments during an 80-minute White House event at which Trump himself announced similar successes throughout the country.

"We're here today to discuss a sweeping, unprecedented, and historically successful operation that my administration has carried out in recent weeks to arrest, prosecute, and permanently remove members of foreign drug cartels from American soil," the president said at the beginning of the event.

Gabbard, of course, has emerged as one of the Trump administration's shining stars. Her work this summer, for instance, in exposing the role of former President Barack Obama and his national-security team in perpetrating the Russia collusion hoax, manufacturing intelligence should lead to many prosecutions and lengthy prison sentences.

The story here, however, involves the years-long nightmare at the southern border and Democrats' complicity in it.

2- Speaking of wicked....here is your walk down memory lane and that time when we all had to endure THE CLINTONS.

They are still tormenting the nation.

Bill and Hillary stole priceless antiques from the White House. Not to mention the goings-on under the priceless Resolute Desk.

Hillary, Bill and Chelsea need to sit this one out.

Trump Administration Fires Back at Hillary Clinton Over White House Ballroom Renovations

QUOTE: The Trump administration took a shot at former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, accusing her of stealing furniture from the White House, after she criticized President Trump's new Ballroom renovations.

"Failed presidential candidate and former First Lady Crooked Hillary Clinton stole furniture from the White House on her way out until she was forced to return it," White House spokesman Davis Ingle said. "Crooked Hillary is shameless and a disgrace. Meanwhile, President Trump is restoring the White House to its proper glory for Americans to enjoy for generations to come — at no expense to the taxpayer — something we should all celebrate."

Clinton took a shot at President Trump, trying to rally supporters against the construction of the White House Ballroom, which will be entirely financed by the President and private donors.

3- We predict, (this is not a hard one to predict), that the radical, unhinged left will fight this act of generosity and patriotism tooth and nail in the courts.

But, until then, isn't it good to see a billionaire give money to HELP America and our military, instead of using their money to hurt the country?

We have all had it with leftist billionaires funding domestic terrorists, lawfare against conservatives, failed green projects, and questionable vaccines.

Deep-pocketed donor who gave $130M to pay soldiers during government shutdown is identified.

QUOTE: Billionaire businessman Timothy Mellon – scion of the famed American banking family – is the deep-pocketed donor who gave $130 million to pay US troops during the government shutdown.

The reclusive Mellon was identified as the source of the funds.

President Trump announced this week that “a friend” who “loves the military and loves the country” – but who didn’t want to be identified – had given the funds.

Trump referenced the contribution en route to Asia Friday night, calling the request for anonymity “pretty unusual in the world I come from,” calling the donor a “gentleman” and a “great patriot.”

The White House declined to comment and referred questions to the Department of War and the Treasury Department, which did not immediately respond to The Post's request for comment. Mellon, 83, is the grandson of industrialist and philanthropist Andrew Mellon. The family is believed to be worth $14 billion.

A day after Trump's 2024 conviction for fraud in New York, Mellon donated a stunning $50 million to the pro-Trump super PAC Make America Great Again.

He lives in Wyoming, where he has kept a low profile.

"The donation was made on the condition that it be used to offset the cost of service members' salaries and benefits," said Pentagon spokesman Sean Parnell.

The Senate on Thursday voted down an effort to pay active duty members of the military, 54-45.

4- It is almost unheard of for any person who was connected to the Obama/Biden reign of terror to come forward and tell the behind the scenes truth.

There are very few memoir books written by Obama staff or Cabinet members.

But, it seems that a member of the Fake News is coming forward with a book on the last campaign. ABC News reporter Jonathan Karl has a soon to be released book, "Retribution: Donald Trump and the Campaign That Changed America".

Here is information they are leaking out now about the book. Behind the scenes, they all hated each other or at the very least did not trust anyone.

We Got New Juicy Details About the Obama-Biden Feud Last Year

QUOTE: For all the unity that the Democratic Party projects, there's actually a lot of drama behind the scenes, and it's nice to see the details finally come out.

According to a new tell-all by ABC News chief Washington correspondent Jonathan Karl on last year's campaign, Joe Biden spent the last weeks of his re-election meltdown dodging phone calls—not from reporters or donors, but from Barack Obama himself. For two full weeks before he finally bailed out last July, Biden reportedly refused to take his old boss's calls. And get this: even after he quit, he gave Obama the cold shoulder for another month.

It's a far cry from the friendly dynamic Democrats once sold to the public. Remember the memes, the matching sunglasses, the "brotherhood" and even the friendship bracelet? Yeah, that's over.

Sources say Biden's bitterness boiled over after word spread that Obama's team quietly nudged George Clooney to write that July 10, 2024, New York Times hit piece urging him to bow out after his train-wreck debate against Donald Trump.

"Obama caused tension when he would visit the White House because he operated as if he still ran it," a Biden official revealed. "He made Biden feel secondary in the room even when staffers were present."

No kidding? We could all tell that from the videos of White House events Obama came to.

Karl's book digs up even juicier details. It turns out President Joe Biden wasn't just ignoring calls from his former boss, Barack Obama—he also snubbed former House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, the very Democrat leading the charge to push him out of office.

Biden ghosting Obama proves once again that loyalty means nothing in a party obsessed with power above principle. Kamala's quiet maneuvering while Biden sulked and Obama schemed showed the cold efficiency of a machine devouring its own. I can't wait for the next juicy details to drop!

5- Ya don't say!

Wind Power: Not the Utopia We Were Sold On

QUOTE: Wind power has been sold to us as an environmental utopia, with lower costs, but ends up being nothing of the sort in practice.

With the aid of government subsidies, we are putting up electric generating windmills all over the place. Such subsidies include the Production Tax Credit (PTC), which, according to the Institute for Energy research (IER), provides a per-kilowatt hour tax credit for electricity generated by qualified wind projects; and the Investment Tax Credit (ITC), which provides a tax credit based on the investment made in renewable energy projects, including wind. According to IER, trillions a being invested here. The United States, under the Biden-Harris climate bill, the Inflation Reduction Act, which is in reality the green new deal under another name, is expected to spend $421 billion between 2025 and 2034 in subsidies to support wind and solar energy.

In the time we've been chasing "green energy" worldwide, the evidence shows that wherever wind and solar are utilized, huge outlays from the government and consumers are necessary to keep them online. The actual operating costs of wind and solar, which the government pays for with money it doesn't have, don't show up on your electric bill, and are thus hidden from the consumer. And, of course, since such costs affect businesses more, and are reflected in higher consumer costs but are never shown in connection with energy sources needed to keep the business' doors open, your wallet is affected in an even larger fashion. And the rate of taxpayer funding for these projects is only increasing in the efforts to meet arbitrary climate goals, costing even more.

And here's the kicker: such projects will never create enough power to pay for themselves. The estimates from wind advocates say that such wind farms have an estimated lifespan of around 25 years.

Bright spot? Yeah, there are a few. It should be said, for example, that on day one of his new White House term, President Trump put a pause on such wind power projects via executive order, halting some $700 million in subsidies. That was as of last April, and you can be sure the numbers of withdrawn wind projects are even larger now. So we have what seems at least a temporary reprieve from this nonsense. But as you might expect, some blue states are fighting this movement away from the wind boondoggle.

The left will keep pushing for wind power. The mainstream media won't tell you that it won't work and will cost more than it produces.
