Dear Patriot,

You could feel it while watching the speeches and events surrounding the big doing at the United Nation this week.

When President Trump talks, EVERYONE listens.

THE WORLD is listening to the most consequential leader in generations.

1- Demoncrats cheered when the Facebook, Twitter and Instagram kicked President Trump off.

Did that deter the world's best problem solver?

Not for long. He created his own social media, Truth Social. All of the President's messages are placed on this platform so that he can talk directly to Americans.

This week, when the Fake News became too insufferable to bear, Trump removed a them from his home.

They are NOT happy. In a petulant huff, all of the Fakes, including Fox News, now refuse to cover Trump.

We laugh. As if that were possible. Trump has been keeping some of these place operating for a decade.

In a twist that seems very planned, on Monday night, The White House announced new Trump TV.

Everyone can get this free App and get their news about Trump and the Administration straight from the source.

White House Launches “TRUMP TV” After Fake News Networks Suspend Coverage of President Trump

QUOTE: The White House is going around the fake news tonight.

While CNN, Politico, and MSNOW run to a federal judge crying about “First Amendment rights,” the Trump White House is launching TRUMP TV, a 24/7 stream of the administration’s biggest moments, speeches, and highlights, live at 7 p.m. Monday.

White House social accounts spent the day teasing it, an old TV set flashing “Something’s coming. Stay tuned,” then an AI-style clip of a satellite truck rolling through the gates. A 60-second trailer touts President Trump’s 2024 landslide. The message is simple: if the legacy networks want to sit this one out, Americans can watch anyway.

The description is blunt: “Watch the Trump Administration’s biggest moments all in one place. Top videos, major remarks, and must-see highlights streaming 24/7 and updated in real time.”

You can download it on your mobile phone at these links.

2- Speaking of old, we grow weary thinking about the decades that the issue of abortion has roiled politics in America. DECADES!

We win some and we lose some but the fight to save babies can not slow down...and is not slowing in the run up to the midterms.

A moral society MUST win this war.

Leading Pro-Life Group Reaches 750K Voter Visits to 'Defeat Pro-Abortion Democrats' in North Carolina Midterms

QUOTE: A leading pro-life organization on Tuesday announced that it has made more than 750,000 visits to voters' homes in North Carolina to "defeat pro-abortion Democrats" in the midterms.

Susan B. Anthony Pro-Life America said the effort is part of its North Carolina Voter Contact Program executed in conjunction with Women Speak Out PAC. The program is focused on Charlotte, Raleigh, Fayetteville, and the Triad seeking to help North Carolina Senate candidate Michael Whatley, 11th Congressional District candidate Jennifer Balkcom, and 1st Congressional District candidate Laurie Buckhout.

"SBA has one of the most committed and impressive canvassing teams out there said Whatley, who is also a former chair of the Republican National Committee (RNC). "They've already hit 750,000 doors for me and are on their way to hitting million."

SBA Pro-Life America said its effort is "the largest, most effective pro-life program of its kind in the nation, and the partners previously announced plans to contact 10.5 million voters this cycle."

The organization is also targeting low-turnout in other states ahead of the midterms, including Iowa, South Carolina, Wisconsin, Ohio, Michigan, Montana, Georgia, and other critical battlegrounds needed to secure pro-life GOP House and Senate majorities.

3- We can only hope that at long last these old RINOs are finally out of our political lives.

We have a NEW party which has sprung, as it should, from the people who want to make our country great again.

We have been fighting the has-been, losers of the Uni-Party since the Tea Party day the election goes the way of our dreams, we might be able to put them all in the trash bin of history.

The Last Stand of Rove, Cornyn, and the Establishment Frauds

QUOTE: Twenty years ago, people would've thought you were crazy if you told them that Karl Rove would be welcomed onto the pages of the regime media to announce that his powerful principles require him to vote for a Democrat who believes you should carve up little boys and girls to conform to the trendy gender delusions of their Munchausen mommies. But in 2026, when he did that, nobody was surprised. Nobody was shocked. After all, betrayal is the old Republican establishment's brand.

Rove and his ilk claim that taking sides against us is mandated by their principles. What principles?

Those principles they always talk about? Somehow, those principles always end up reinforcing the power of the failed GOP establishment at the expense of the GOP base. And those principles always require that we give up our interests, our rights, and our prosperity. Pretty convenient, huh?

Do you think Karl Rove would be doing this if anyone at the White House took him seriously? Their phony outrage is a convenient excuse. The issue isn't whether it was a nice tweet or not; the issue is that they didn't have to trash their own party, but they chose to do it anyway. One of the big reasons they hate Trump is that Trump started talking about immigration, and they didn't like that. They had decreed you're not allowed to talk about it, and then this guy did. But Trump spoke for us when nobody else in the GOP would. They didn't want our input because our input wasn't going to be what they wanted.

Guys like Karl Rove and his boss, George W. Bush, decided that what America needed to do was change, and what they didn't need to do was ask us about it. They just did it without asking, just like they sent our jobs overseas, because they knew better. Because they were smarter. More moral. Our betters.

The Tea Party and Donald Trump were largely a reaction to these guys, and we've been fighting and largely winning that war ever since. We were once an insurgent now we are in power.

Oh, it's not just Karl Rove. Senator John Cornyn ("R"-Nowhere) is part of this imbroglio too. He is big mad that Texas voters rejected him. He must be pretty humiliated right now, which is good, because he deserves it. He wouldn't be in this situation if he didn't have such profound contempt for his own voters.

And we were equally stunned the other day when news broke that George Will was likewise promoting the Democrat candidate in South Carolina. Of course, what stunned us the most was that George Will still exists. His decline to bitter establishmentarianism started long ago, which is when we stopped listening. It's hard to understand how influential he was decades ago, although George Will was always like Peggy Noonan without the testosterone. People used to actually think of him as the touchstone of conservatism, but time has made clear that the performative Republicanism of these guys was just that – a performance. It was an act, a mask, a brand.

Their newfound diversity principles are as fake as everything else about them. They're not supporting the Democrats because of some moral imperative. They're doing it to hurt us because we rejected them, because we withheld the respect that they believe is their due from their lessers. This latest old GOP establishment traitor isn't about principles. This is about being pissed off at the people who told them to talk to the hand. And now, as far as we're concerned, they can talk to the finger.

4- We are not sure what delights us more...the lifelong security of our continent or that Trump did what the experts said could never happen!

Trump's Greenland Deal Makes The World More Secure, And Makes The Media Less Relevant Than Ever

QUOTE: The Trump administration has announced a security deal with Denmark over Greenland, surprising no one except the entire foreign policy establishment and a bunch of slogan-chanting journalists who surrendered their capacity for independent thought at least 10 years ago. This is why you don't take legacy me seriously, and the same goes for listening to the professional brow-furrowers at think tanks.

Like everyone else in the dinosaur media, the toddlers at The New York Times spent January wetting their diapers over the whole thing. Trump was getting ready to attack all of Europe, starting the bloody meal with Greenland as a mere appetizer. The Times compared Trump to, you'll never guess, Adolf Hitler, with a headline about how Nazis have always yearned to control Greenland. Trump, the leading Democrat newsletter declared, was announcing his violent intentions with regard to Greenland as a way of communicating his intent to exercise unlimited power everywhere. The world would be soaked in blood as the terrifying fascist brutally invaded Greenland, obviously.

NATO's darkest hour, it turns out, led to a security deal that Denmark and Greenland are speaking of with considerable warmth. Danish Prime Minister Met Frederiksen said that the agreement "strengthens our common security in the Arctic and the North Atlantic Area and therefore is great for NATO and Europe as well."

In January, NPR warned that people in Greenland were hurt, angry, and confused over Trump's angry and threatening rhetoric. In September, Greenland Premier Jens-Frederik Nielsen praised the deal for strengthening the security of Greenland. "It is to the benefit of us all," he said.

Salena Zito told us all of this a long time ago. As the headline put it at the time, Trump should be taken seriously, but not literally. The man who summed up his approach in a book called The Art of the Deal uses inflated and dramatic language to push people to the table for negotiation. Selling panic as a product, the legacy media can't seem to allow themselves to figure this out.

Svetlana Lokhova had her life ruined by Fake News lies. She shows the evidence

Just a reminder of a few of the fake Demoncrat/Fake News fear campaigns.

Carl Higbee runs down 80 times Left Wing Fake News has flat out lied.

6- Cartoon of the Day

It is THE most successful strategy the Demoncrats have...made up FEAR.

It may have started when Demoncrats told Seniors that the Republicans would end their Social Security. And the Seniors believed it, because fear is strongly motivating

For the record, no one has ever taken anyone's Social Security checks. But, they still to scare a whole new group of Seniors that the Republicans will do it this time!

We have gone through many manufactured fear ploys but, frankly, it may not work us anymore.

PRAY to the safety and health of President Trump and his team.

PRAY for all children, born and unborn.

PRAY for world peace.

PRAY for the truth to seep into the minds of all Americans.

SHARE the truth.
