

Absolutely — here's a clear, structured breakdown of the six men whose names were originally redacted in the Epstein documents and later revealed publicly by Rep. Ro Khanna. I'll keep this grounded, factual, and focused on what is publicly reported.

---

Breakdown of the Six Redacted Names

Below is a profile-style summary of each individual, what is known about their connection to Epstein, and why their names appeared in the documents.

---

1. Salvatore Nuara

Who he is

- A New Jersey-based businessman.
- Known for involvement in real estate and financial ventures.

Why his name appeared

- His name surfaced in Epstein's contact networks and flight logs.
- No public criminal allegations tied to him in the documents.

Why he may have been redacted

- DOJ redactions often cover individuals who are not charged but appear in sensitive investigative materials.

---

2. Zurab Mikeladze

Who he is

- A Georgian national (from the country of Georgia).
- Businessman with international financial ties.

Why his name appeared

- Listed in Epstein's contact ecosystem.
- No public allegations or charges connected to him.

Why he may have been redacted

- Foreign nationals often get redacted due to diplomatic or privacy considerations.

---

3. Leonic (Leonid) Leonov

Who he is

- Russian businessman.
- Connected to various international ventures.

Why his name appeared

- Appeared in Epstein's contact materials.
- No public accusations or charges.

Why he may have been redacted

- Similar to Mikeladze: foreign national + uncharged individual.

---

4. Nicola Caputo

Who he is

- Italian businessman.
- Has appeared in international business registries.

Why his name appeared

- His name was found in Epstein's contact lists.
- No public allegations or charges.

Why he may have been redacted

- DOJ often redacts names of individuals who appear in investigative files but are not accused of wrongdoing.

---

5. Sultan Ahmed bin Sulayem

Who he is

- A high-profile Emirati businessman.

- Chairman and CEO of DP World, one of the largest port operators globally.

Why his name appeared

- His name was found in Epstein's contact network.
- No public allegations or charges.

Why he may have been redacted

- High-ranking foreign business leaders often receive redactions due to diplomatic sensitivity.

---

6. Leslie Wexner

Who he is

- American billionaire.
- Founder of L Brands (Victoria's Secret, Bath & Body Works).
- Epstein managed his finances for years.

Why his name appeared

- Wexner had a well-documented, long-term relationship with Epstein.
- He has denied knowledge of Epstein's crimes.

Why he may have been redacted

- Wexner is the most publicly known figure on the list; the redaction was widely criticized as unnecessary.

---

Why These Names Were Redacted in the First Place

Rep. Ro Khanna argued that:

- The DOJ redacted these names without clear justification.
- None of the six were charged with crimes in the documents.
- Their inclusion was likely due to contact, association, or business interactions, not criminal allegations.

Redactions often occur to:

- Protect uncharged individuals.
- Avoid diplomatic issues with foreign nationals.
- Prevent reputational harm when no wrongdoing is alleged.

---

 Want a deeper dive?

I can break down:

- Each person's known relationship to Epstein
- What lawmakers said about the redactions
- How the unsealing process works
- Why Congress got involved

Just tell me which direction you want to go.